Comments: Large cave mouth - c. 55' breadth and 90' high at mouth. This large shelter area extends back about 50 feet from cave entrance. At that point the cave suddenly becomes less of an overhang and more of a <sup>low</sup> tunnel c. 5' high and 20' in width, contracting rapidly within a distance of some 30'. (For about 15' from mouth cave floor is disturbed by armadillo burrowing)

Trench c. 2x2' - basic characteristics Level 1 Deeper on W. side than on E. in an attempt to get a level floor. On W. side 4" deep. This whole level went down to a vegetable floor c 2" thick. It overlay a layer of ash.

Level 2 2" thick, underneath it a brown loamish area approx 1' thick.

Level 3 6" layer of ash and brownish loam.

Levels 4-6 6" deep each

Note 1 - 2' 2" was the final depth to which excavation proceeded. Preserved vegetable material throughout all 6 levels.

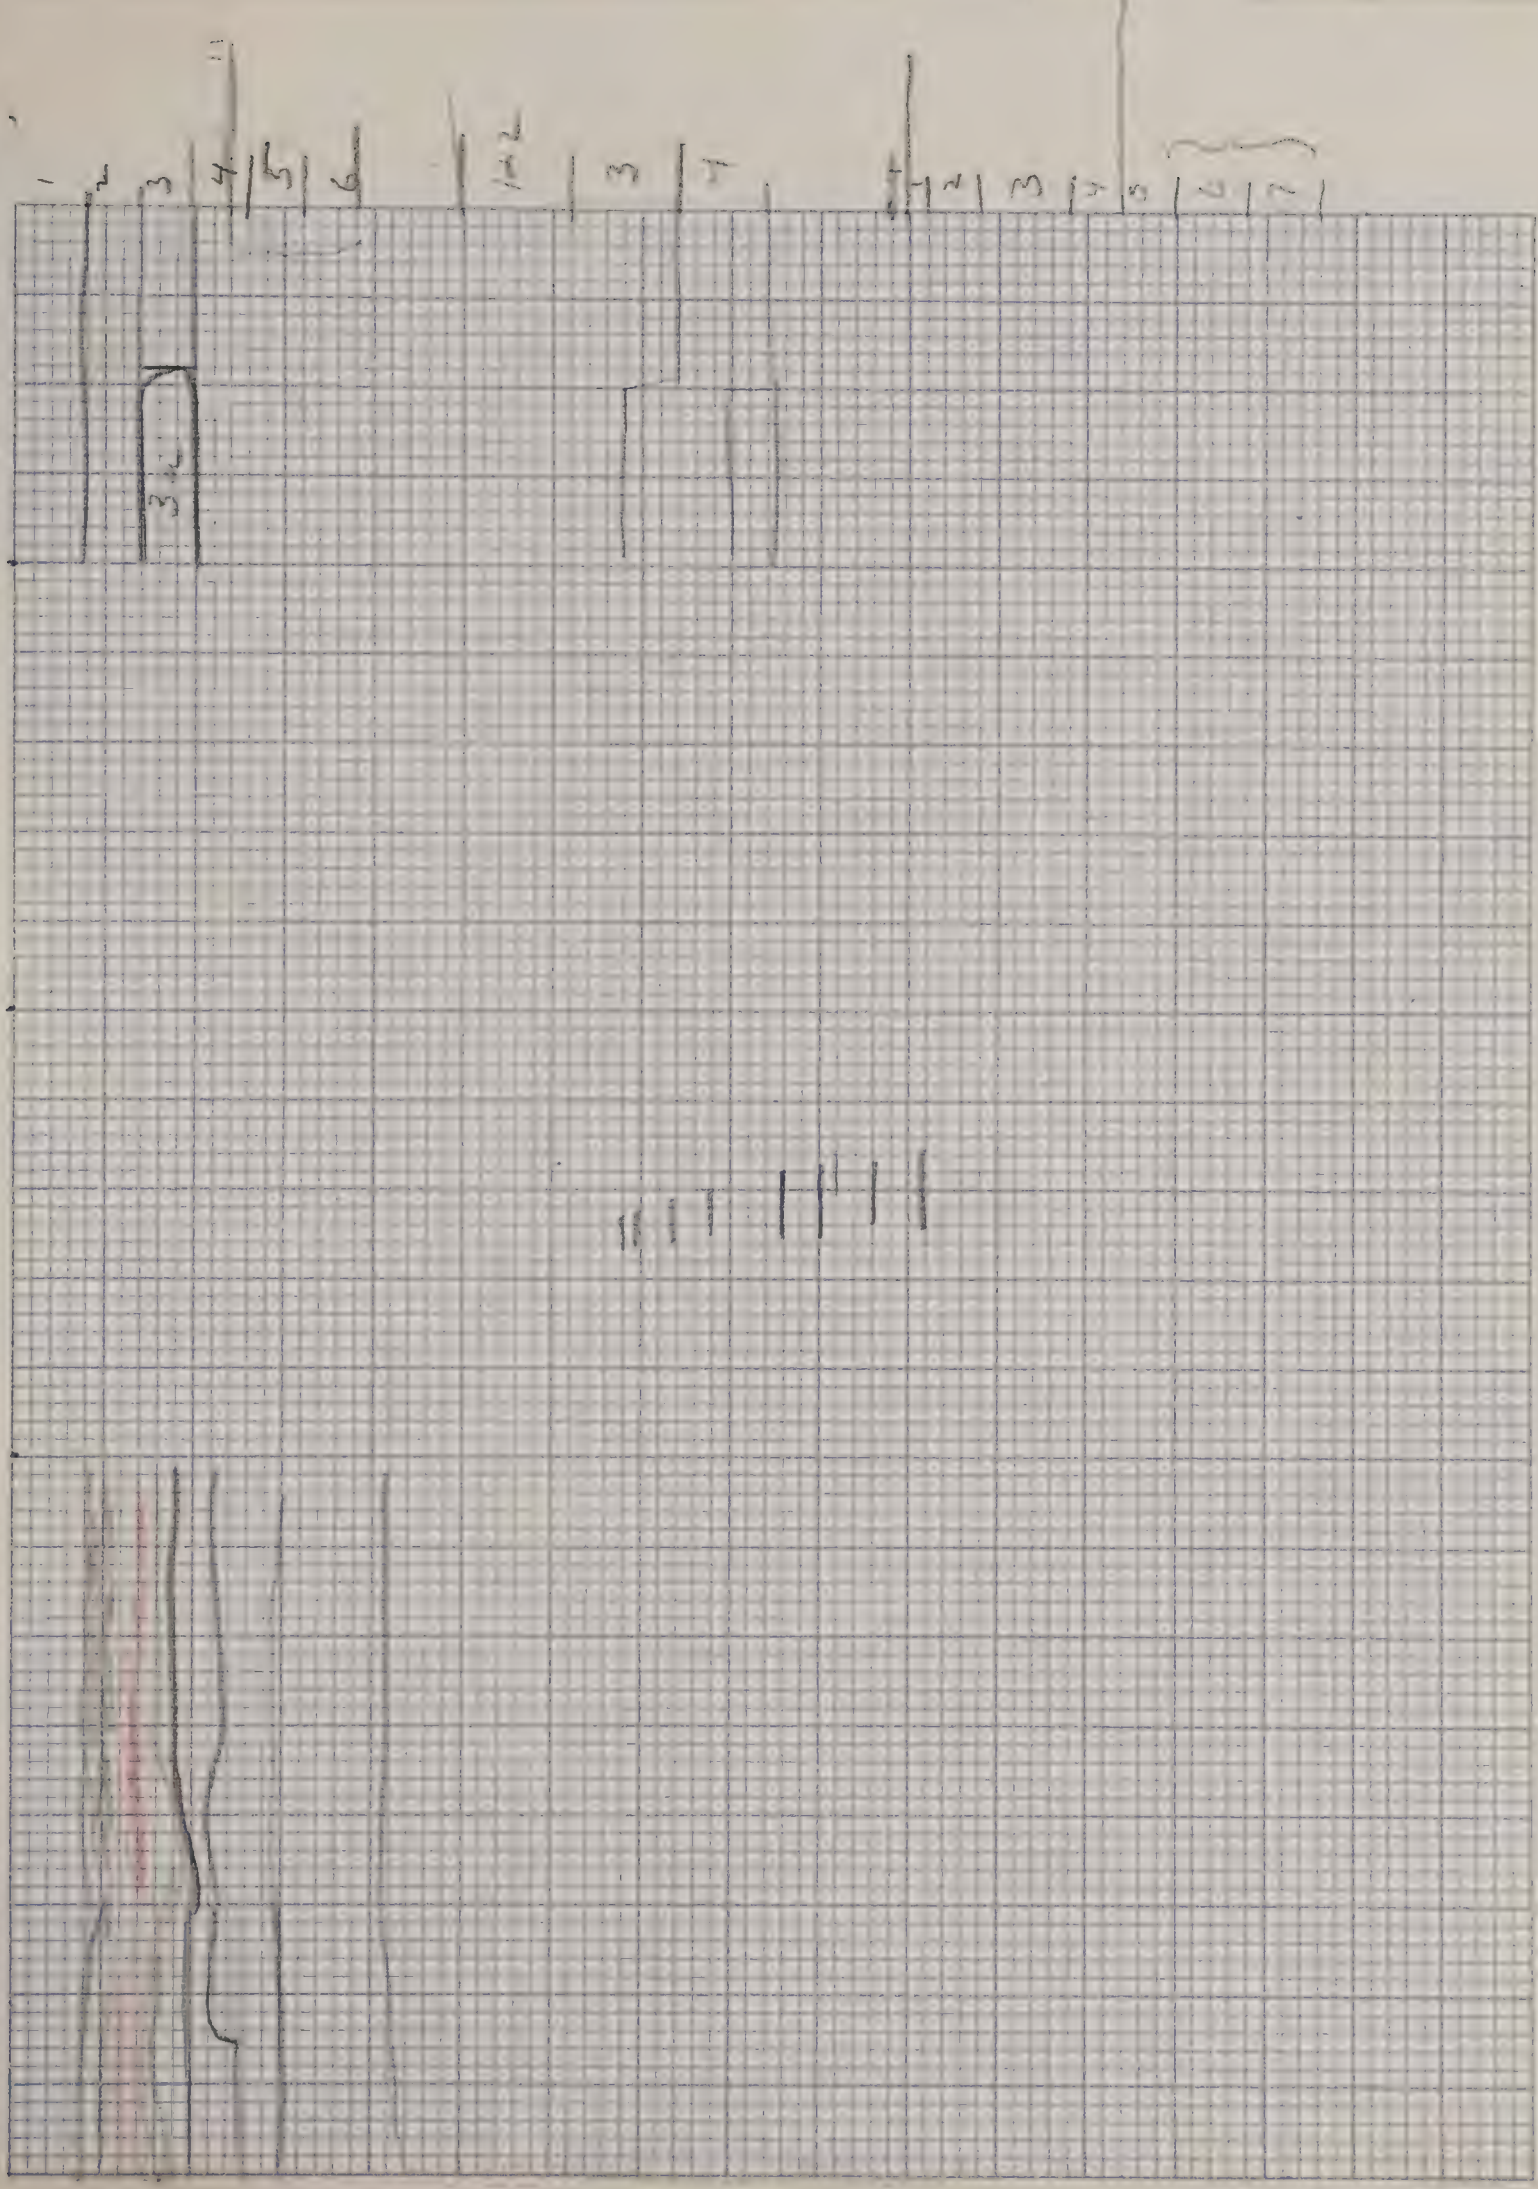

- Depth of refuse may be as much as 20'.

- The cave has been named by Mackenzie after the rodent burrowing.

This time separately went down 2 feet though under the top 2 feet probably much is quite different from Tm '78
Tm '79 is as large, & large don't explain
incidentally - soon we killed a cow which had 2 lbs fat long, or

Then back 10 into (Padre says 2 lbs)
to camp. In the canyon coquillas Tm '78 show some, of course, and in fact, some of the fossils. Padre says a few others not very important, but one of the valuable, still a smaller round form
which is recognition.

Apr 5 - Returned to San Angeles, packing
and got rid of insects.

April 6 - washed pottery from Tm '78, back houses, prepared for trip to Canyon Diablo

April 7.

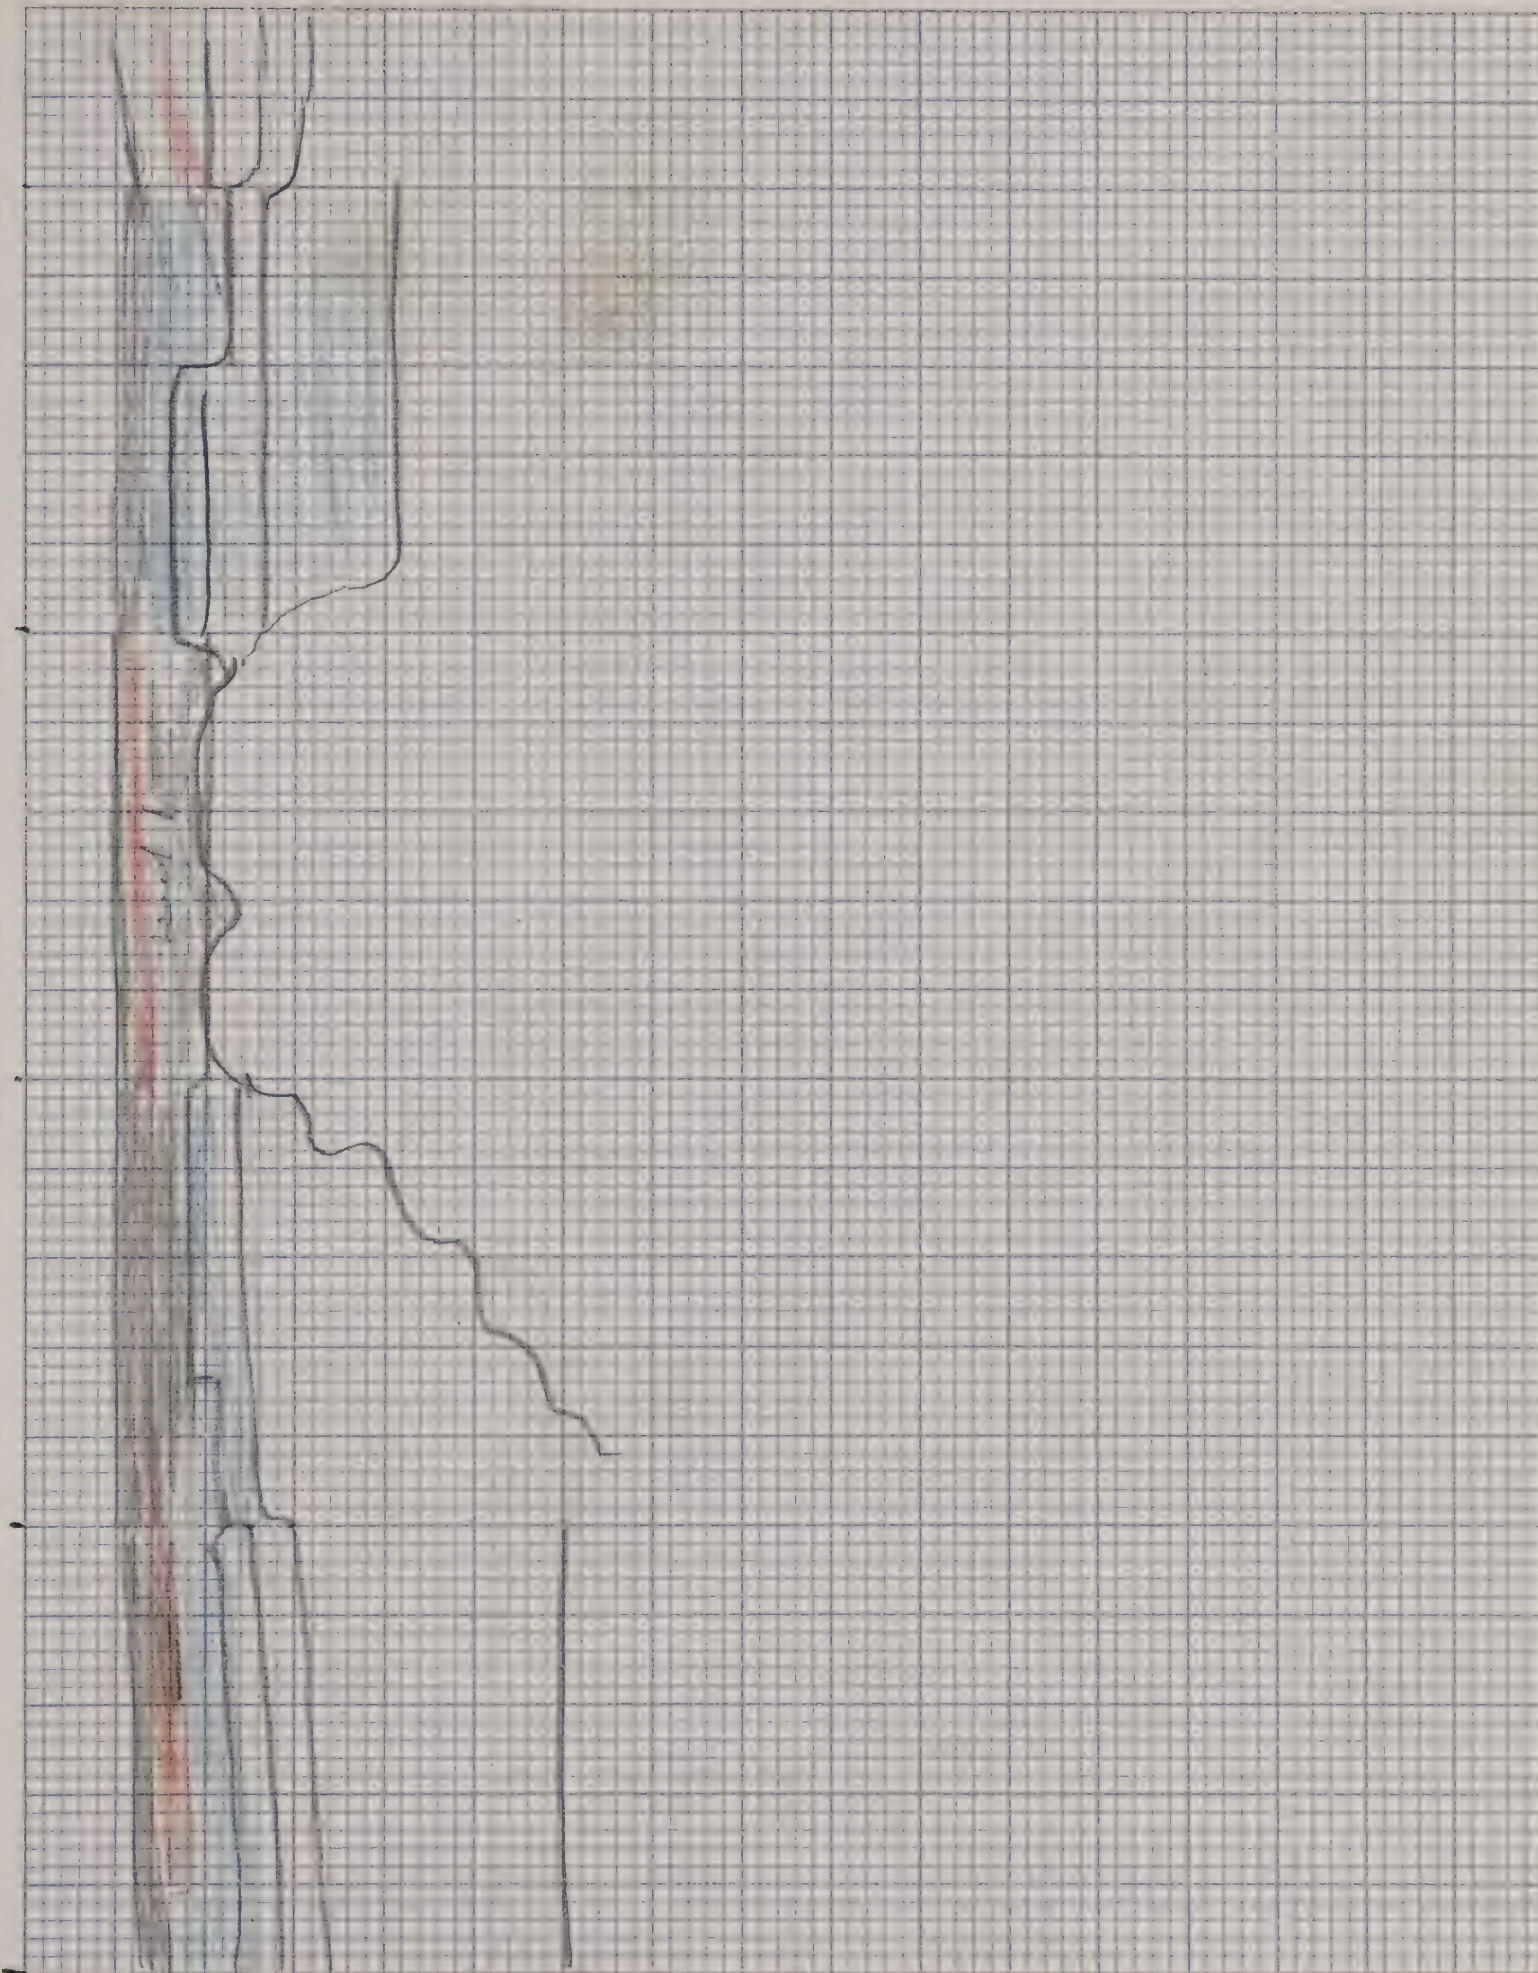

W1 - grey sand
brown mud
